

COMPANY HISTORY

D C White & Partners has been offering mechanical engineering consultancy since 1987. Doug White decided to build upon the expertise he gained through his time as one of the four founding members of Principia Mechanica Ltd which in the 1980's built up a reputation for its seismic expertise and its contributions to the newly-developing areas of mathematical understanding, particularly impact analysis and probability methods. Today D C White & Partners maintains this tradition with its ambition to deliver academic levels of engineering consultancy to commercial timescales.

The new company operates on a similar basis to Principia but providing a broader range of mechanical and civil engineering solutions. Seismic structural engineering, vibration and innovative analysis still form an important part of our work but with the additions of specialist designs, piping, thermal and fracture investigations together with bespoke instrumentation and testing services.

The governor for the Greenock Waterwheel, 1843.